Squire Hotel.

Solomon Kohn, a lawyer at 202 Broad. way, and residing at 3 West Thirty-ninth street, created a ripple of excite-street station with the startling information that Joseph H. Louis, of 131 West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, room of the Union Square Hotel in Four-

Ine Sergeant at he desk immediately stated that his patient had not attempted suicide, but was ill with nervous pristration.

Dr. Wolf indignantly denied that here was any evidence that Mr. Louis had tried to kill himself.

Joseph H. Louis is head bookkeeper for N. J. Schloss & Co., clothiers, at 653 Broadway, treasurer of a land scheme at 171 Broadway, and resides at 192 West Seventy-fifth street.

Mr. Kohn could not be found at his office this morning, and no one there could give any explanation of the affair or reason why Kohn should have given Dr. Wolf's address for that of Louis.

At N. J. Schloss & Co.'s it was said that nothing was wrong in Louis's accounts so far as was known, but that an investigation would be made. Louis is thirty-five years old, and has been with the firm since he was sixteen years old. The firm had always believed him honest, and knew of no reason for Louis to attempt to commit suicide, nor had they yet learned that he had made such an attempt.

At the Union Square Hotel, the book.

It was said also that Louis went to the hotel yesterday morning, and did not go home last night. Policeman Edward Maguire, of the East Twenty-second street station, is investigating what is being made a mystery of by every one concerned.
At Dr. Wolf's house it was said that ne was not only not at home, but that it was not known when he would be.
At the apartments of Mr. Louis, on the fifth floor of the swell "Del Monte" flats, 192 West Seventy-fifth street, an "Evening Wor'd" reporter was told that Mrg. Louis was prostrated and unconscious.

Before Justice Lawrence, in the Supreme Court, Special Term, Lawyer CAPETOWN. Dec. 5.—Administrator Jameson reports from Buluwayo that Major Forbes is still pursuing King Lobergula, and expects to overtake him soon, as the King is within a hundred mues of Buluwayo on the Bubi River with a following too small to cover his retreat across the Zambesi.

Many indunas are ready to submit to disarming, but they fear that others will attack them. Owing to their hesitation, Dr. Jameson has despatched patrols to expedition and the same alleged libelious statements. Peter would have us believe that Americans, while they deplore the overthrow of some bright particular star more than is not so soon forgotten across-the Atlantic. A loser in a good fight in England stands almost as well as he did before his defeat, but over here, says Peter, he might as well get the Legian at the whole, he regards Britons as truer sportsmen than Americans. The Briton is more phlegmatic and a more careful student of the game.

Jackson closes his remarks with words a pugllist and the English aristocracy. Not many will take exception to his statement that Dixon is a piece of true fighting steel, but there is apt to be some scepticism about English aristocracy being the "best class of people living." The coming tournament, judging from the demand for seats promises to be unusually successful, and to bring better billiards than ever before. Two of the principals are in town, and Schaefer will be here. Thursday, Ives arrived last evening.

The young Napoleon is still a bit grumpy, and blames the referee for his recent defeat by Schaefer, He says the spectators were wrought up to a very high pitch during the match, and things got so bad that ladies wouldn't attend the latter part of the week. "Schaefer had the spectators with him," said Ives. "When I got up and stood by Schaefer while he was playing they yelled at me to sit down. I had a perfect right to do so to look out for my lown interests. When Schaefer did the same thing to me no objection was made. Jake is playing stronger billiards than he ever did in his life. Do I think he'll be able to keep up the pace here? Yes, I know of no reason why he shouldn't."
